his intention of killing himself. The letter was posted at Btation "L" late last night. President, Reinboldt, of the Cooks and Parsy Cooks Association, assured an "Evaling World" reporter that Rohr's accounts were all right, and deeply deplored his comrade's rash act. He could account for it only on the supposition that Rohr, who was extremely sensitive, had become heartly shamed of his over indulgence in liquor, and, mortified still further by his wife's chiding, had sought relief in still deeper libations. Repentance and shame had followed, and he had put an end to the struggle with his conscience by shooting himself.

The suicide had no children. Mr. Ellmers has claimed the body, which was removed to the West One Hundred and Fifty-second street station. Rohr will be buried by the Association.
